Ranajit Sengupta with his Guru Ustad Aashish Khan

Anubrata Chatterjee

Ranajit Sengupta, a child prodigy, started his Sarode lessons under the tutelage of Late Ustad Dhyanesh Khan of Maihar Gharana, followed by advanced training under the maestro Ustad Aashish Khan of the same gharana, established himself as one of the best musicians of his generation. An internationally acclaimed artist, Ranajit represented India in international Music Festivals all around the world. He performed at the Banga Mela & Rabindra Mela in the United States in 2003 & 2004, and at the Banga Sanskriti Sammelan in the United Kingdom in 2002 & 2003. He participated in many workshops conducted by the legendary maestro Ustad Ali Akhbar Khan in India and the United States. For more on Ranajit Sengupta, please visit his website www.ranajitsengupta.com.

Acclaimed as one of the best young percussionists of India and son of the world-renowned tabla maestro, Pt. Anindo Chatterjee, Anubrata, has the rare fortune of becoming the youngest and last "Ganda-Bandh" disciple of the great Guru Padmabhushan-Desikottam Jnan Prakash Ghosh. Later, he continued to study under his own father. He has performed in some of the most prestigious festivals in several countries.
